Dear Friends:

It is with great pleasure that I extend my greetings to all those gathered for ICAS's Symposium, The Korean Diaspora. I would like to commend the efforts of the Institute for Corean-American Studies to foster relationships among the many cultures in our community. The mission of your organization – to promote humanity, peace, and security among all nations and people – sends a strong message of friendship, hope, and tolerance upon which the founders of the United States built our government.

Again, my best wishes to you on a successful event.

Sincerely,
